

Introduction to Polymer Clay Jewelry – A Workshop – Sponsored by...

Make your own one-of-a-kind polymer clay pendant or focal bead and turn it into a necklace or bracelet to wear home. You'll learn conditioning, color blending, texturing and surface treatments for polymer clay, then bake and polish your creation. Your finished art piece will then be strung with your beads to design a unique necklace or bracelet, and you'll learn how to finish the ends and add a clasp. Taught by Nancy Shaw.

Materials to bring to class

- at least 3 blocks of polymer clay (any brand) in your choice of colors. more colors equal better creative options.
- straight slicing blade
- acrylic roller, with or without a handle, is recommended, as well beads of any material to coordinate with the clay colors

Provided for you a work surface, a baking tile for each person, the use of Nancy's tools, free

Nancy will have for sale stringing kits - wire, findings, and lobster clasp - to complete the necklace, for $5, payable by cash the day of the workshop.

About the instructor:

After finding a stone bead at a gift shop 20 years ago, Nancy taught herself how to make a necklace with it. She fell in love with all the possibilities of beads, stone, crystals and metal and her passion for "stringing stuff" quickly grew out of control. Then while cruising through a craft store 10 years later, all the pretty colors of polymer clay caught her eye. From then on, she was hooked on polymer clay. It soon became an extension of her jewelry design. She is now retired after 40 years of accounting work. She lives in Brimfield with her husband, Roger, and her cat, Mercedes. Nancy is also a singer and an avid gardener.

You may email her at nancysshaw@yahoo.com with questions about the class.
